A MONTH'S TRAVELS IN EUROPE.

Mr. Joseph Spidel Talks Entertainingly of His Experiences in Europe.

ENGLAND BEHIND THE TIMES

Germany the Most Prosperous Country He Visited—Greatly Disappointed in Paris.

Mr. Joseph Spidel has returned from an European trip extending over a period of a month, and while there he made some observations of an interesting nature. Mr. Spidel was accompanied by his son, Jesse, who is still in Paris. While in Germany Mr. Spidel contracted a severe cold, compelling him to make his sojourn briefer than was his original intention. He sailed from New York July 4, on the American liner St. Louis, and landed at Southampton on the 11th.

They remained in London eight days and at Harwich they embarked for Holland, crossing the North Sea. They then went by rail to Amsterdam. They here visited the diamond cutting establishments and ancient churches. At Cologne they visited the ruins of the Dom church, which was erected in 1200 and was sixty years in building. This church is a colossus in size and teems with old paintings and relics.

They visited cities on the Rhine, and saw the celebrated bridge spanning the Rhine which Caesar crossed on his way to and from Rome. The bridge contained a bust of Caesar, carved in stone. They traveled by boat along the Rhine and visited Frankfurt, where Rothschild laid the nest egg of his millions and still has a bank.

At Heidelberg they visited the ruins of the Heidelberg castle, one of the most extensive of Europe. It contains a cask that holds 465,000 bottles of wine and has only been filled three times. The castle was built in 1200 and contains a statue of a king's jester that was reputed to drink eighteen bottles of wine every day he lived. Napoleon captured this tower in 1806 and undermined and blew it up. The part blown up is twenty-two feet thick and appears as solid as it may be. It was the day it was blown up, over one hundred years ago. Heidelberg had between 30,000 and 40,000 inhabitants and was noted for the fine quality of its beer. The beer sold for two and one-half cents a glass and the glasses were three times as large as what we Americans pay five cents for. It was the famous Bavarian brand, had a dark color and had a rich taste.

At Strassburg they visited the famous cathedral that has been in the course of erection for six years. Mr. Spidel said the men were working on it the day they were there. After leaving Strassburg they went to Paris by easy stages.

Mr. Spidel said he was greatly disappointed in Paris. He had always been led to believe it a beautiful city, but, he said, it could not be compared to New York. It had not the fine buildings, nor were the modes of conveyance as good.

In speaking of the exposition Mr. Spidel said it was not to be compared with the World's Fair at Chicago. It was not laid out as systematically, nor had they the room. There were thirty-four different spaces for American exhibits. Americans were hampered for space. The Westinghouse people had built a building of their own outside of the electrical exhibit on account of the cramped condition of that building. The McCormick agricultural implement people had also done this and they were handicapped on this account.

The Americans had also a fine exhibit at Vincennes, six miles from the exhibition. This was found necessary on account of lack of space in the exposition proper. Mr. Spidel said the French were jealous of us Americans and put us off with as little space as possible.

The tickets for the exposition were placed on sale in the Bourse, which corresponds to our board of trade, and were sold as low as twenty centimes (four cents). Fakirs bought them up when they were selling at a low figure and then peddled them on the streets as low as five cents and as high as twenty cents.

On the Friday night before leaving Paris, Mr. Spidel saw the electrical illumination of the grounds and the naval parade on the Seine. To witness this spectacle it was necessary to purchase four tickets of admission at seven cents each, making the price of admission twenty-eight cents.

Hotel rates in Paris were very high, especially for good service. The cab rates were not unreasonable and the service good. A "cabby" however, always expected a tip. Mr. Spidel said this was a noticeable feature throughout Paris. No matter how trivial the service performed the waiter expected a tip. In some places they would line up and await their turn. Americans especially would be expected to come forth because they were supposed to be each an individual Croesus.

Mr. Spidel said England seemed to be prosperous and the people seemed to have plenty of money. They were not up-to-date as far as means of transportation was concerned. They were far and away behind the United States in this respect. The passenger coaches had only four wheels and were about twenty feet in length. Entrance is through a small door at the side, which, after the passenger has entered, is closed and locked. Passengers traveled first, second and third class. First class cost from four to five cents, second class, two and one-half to three cents, and third class, one cent a mile. Everybody there said that only fools and Americans traveled first class. The engines were very small and about one-third the size of those in this country. The freight cars had a capacity of only ten tons and had only four wheels like the passenger coaches. All countries of Europe had the same style of conveyances that England had.

In Holland when the conductor on a train blew a horn it was a signal for another attaché on the train to blow likewise and after a ten-minute parley the train would pull out. Before starting a fellow would walk along side the train ringing a bell to notify everybody to be aboard.

In Holland and Germany there were no fences in the agricultural regions. They had no harvesting machines, this being done in the most crude way. It was not an uncommon thing to see a woman behind a plow, to which were attached a team of cows.

Mr. Spidel thought Germany the most prosperous country he visited. The thing that struck him most was the prevalence of soldiers. There were 25,000 in Berlin; 125,000 in and about Strassburg, and 15,000 in Bonn. At the time he was there they were making preparations for sending soldiers to China.

Mr. Spidel, in concluding, said he did not think the French or Germans were enamored of President McKinley. They did not like our protection idea, and they wanted to see Bryan elected president. The English, he thought, were more favorable to us.

THE BURWINKLE CASE.

Sheriff Richards Declines to Turn Over the Girl to the Marion Authorities—She is in Jail as a Person Not of Good Fame—A Fight Will Ensnue.

The Burwinkle case was given another whirl yesterday in the local judicial arena, but the end is not yet. As matters stand the girl remains in Wheeling, a guest at the county jail as a person not of good fame, but the Marion county authorities intend to push the case and say they will compel the return of the girl to Marion county before many moons.

The first development of the day was the return of Deputy Sheriff Kelly, of Marion county, to Wheeling. He called on Sheriff Richards and presented his warrant for the girl, but the sheriff declined to produce the girl, as she had been committed to jail in a regular proceeding as a person not of good fame and was awaiting a hearing.

At 7 o'clock last evening, the girl, Jeannette Burwinkle, was put on trial in Justice Fitzpatrick's court, charged with being a person not of good fame, and was put under $100 bond to be of good behavior for one year. In default of bond she was committed to jail again.

The Marion county people are decidedly wroth over the peculiar turn of events in the Burwinkle case, and make threats that they will prosecute the Wheeling officials who are responsible for the young woman being detained here. They say these officials are open to a fine from $50 to $500 or one year's imprisonment. Attorney John O. Pendleton has been retained by the Marion county people to prosecute the case.

HIBERNIAN OUTING.

At the Fair Grounds a Conspicuous Success—Attended by Large Crowds Results of the Races and Other Contests.

The annual outing of the Park Division and Ladies' Auxiliary of the Ancient Order of Hibernians at the State Fair Grounds yesterday was a conspicuous success. Big crowds were in attendance and the grounds late in the afternoon presented the appearance of a day at the State Fair. The various committees having the affair in charge having provided no end of amusements to delight the visitors.

Mayer's band rode over the street railway loop in the morning and advertised the affair. At the grounds they provided concert music during the afternoon and evening. The Grand Opera House orchestra was stationed at the pavilion and discoursed music for those inclined to dance and the floor was at all times crowded with devotees of Terpsichore.

Other features were chain racks, shooting gallery, "nigger" baby racks and sundry other seductive games to catch the unwary and his pocketbook. The races were the big feature and were thoroughly enjoyed by the crowds. The bicycle race, in charge of Jess McCausland, was won by Robert McCracken, a South Side boy, with a minute handicap. The time prize was won by Charles Reed, one of the scratch men. There were ten entries in this race and it resulted as follows:

Riders.	Hdp.	Place.
Robert McCracken	1:30	1
Richard Ford	1:35	2
Bruno Schaler	1:40	3
Charles Reed	1:45	4
Edward J. Altmeyer	1:50	5
W. Fabel	1:55	6

The prizes were: First, lamp; second, camera; third, bicycle hose. The time prize was a fine pearl stick pin.

The running race between Thomas Cheek's "Princess" and William McGannon's "Duckey Do" was won by the latter, he taking two straight heats, both of them in in close and exciting finish. The time in the last heat was 52 seconds for the half mile. The race was for a purse of $50.

There were five entries in the one hundred-yard foot race and it was won by William Shelly. John Clark, Will Henry, Ed. Littman and H. E. Taylor finished in the order named. The prize was a ring.

The wheelbarrow race created a great deal of amusement and was run by colored boys. Harry Jump came in first with Cash Brown a close second. The first prize was a base ball glove, and the second a ball and bat.

The funniest contest of the day was the mule race. James Callahan and Pat Cahill's "Thunder" second. The mules were driven by pickanninies and the distance was once around the track. The prize was a pair of trousers.

The various committees in charge of the affair and to whom its success is due is as follows:

General committee—John J. Byrne, chairman; Raymond Cunningham, John Fitzgerald, Edward King, Bernard Mehen, James Fleming, John Callahan, James Howley, John Howley, P. A. Reilly, William O'Neill, Daniel O'Leary, John J. Shaughnessy, J. W. Kemple, John McNamara and Patrick Reilly.

FINE MUSIC ONE OF THE FEATURES

At the Moundsville Camp Meeting, Being Under the Direction of Mr. D. W. Ruble

THE EPWORTH LEAGUE DAY

Programme an Attractive One, and the Largest Crowd of the Meeting is Expected.

One of the features of the Moundsville camp-meeting, of which scarcely anything has been said in these reports, is the music under the direction of D. W. Ruble. Especially is this a feature of the evening services, when there is generally a full chorus of voices. The camp ground quartette has given several selections, and will continue to do so during the entire meeting. Rev. C. H. Maloney, pastor of Zane Street M. E. church, contributes largely to the success of the music, both vocal and instrumental.

Mr. Frazier, with his cornet, is a great help at the evening services. Brother Ruble is a choir in himself and the singing never lags for want of members in the choir. The music will continue to be more and more each day, a feature of the meeting. There is much religion in the proper singing of sacred songs.

The early morning service was conducted by Brother Fuller and was a meeting of great interest, as all these meetings are to those attending. Rev. C. S. Fuller led the 9 o'clock service and it was well attended. At 10:30 a. m. the services were as follows: A song service by the choir; prayer by Rev. A. Merrells. Rev. W. D. Rinson, of Fulton, preached an excellent sermon from the words, "Whosoever would come after Me, let him deny himself, take up his cross and follow." A few of the points made were as follows: First, We must deny ourselves; we do not do this as we ought to do. If God required us to do some great thing to be His disciple, how many of us would rush to do it? But when it comes to denying ourselves the pleasures of life to become Christians, we shrink back. One of the reasons why our meeting is not the success we would wish it to be is because we do not deny ourselves. We are not willing to give up our morning nap in order to attend the early morning prayer meeting. We are not willing to get down in the dust, if necessary, in order to save souls.

"Then we must take up our own cross; be willing to do all things whatsoever He may require us to do. But, best of all, we must follow Him. The command is, 'Follow Me.' We must follow Him, wherever He calls us to go. We must get down off our dignity. Do not be afraid to shout, if necessary. In these latter days, it is not dignified to shout, but if you feel like it shout aloud the praises of God."

The entire service was an earnest appeal to become more humble. At the close an altar service of consecration was held. The altar was crowded and the service was a wonderful one, the most wonderful one thus far of the meeting. It would have been a good place for those who do not believe in religion to be. Their unbelief would surely disappear under such displays of power.

The children's meeting was as usual, one of the most interesting features of the day. The exercises were as follows: A song was sung, after which all knelt and repeated the Lord's Prayer in concert. Another song was sung, after which the apostle's creed was repeated. Another service was sung, after which Miss Scott told the children a camp meeting story which turned out to be the story of the little boy with the five loaves and two small fishes with which the five thousand were fed. She then applied the story, showing that Christ would give us the bread of life if we ask Him to do so. At 3:30 Rev. George S. Fuller preached from the words, "Whosoever ye shall ask in My name that I will do that the Father may be glorified in the son." Theme, "Grounds of successful prayer." He preached an earnest sermon, making the point that we should ask for things we need and just as sure as we do thus ask God will hear us.

The following programme will be carried out to-morrow afternoon, which is Epworth League Rally Day:

Singing by choir.

Prayer by Rev. A. Moore.

Singing by choir.

Scripture lesson by Miss Mollie Windsor.

Solo, by Miss Lydia McNash.

Address, by Mr. Wayne Denman.

Address, by Prof. C. E. Carrigan.

Solo, by Miss Annie Pellay.

Paper—"Our Common Brotherhood," by Miss Maggie Curtis.

Singing by choir.

Address, by Mr. Rutter.

Address, by Dr. E. Yocum.

Dr. Berry will speak at night and will also preach Sunday, both morning and evening.

Night Session.

Last night, Dr. Hatt, of Barnesville, Ohio, preached to a large congregation, taking for his text, "I will lift up my eyes unto the hills from whence cometh my help." Some points are: Many of the greatest revelations of God were given from the mountains. Their vastness, though vanishing, tells of his changeless eternity. The mountains have ever been the refuge of the persecuted. The mountains of Italy, Switzerland and Scotland were cited as instances. David gave his noble conceptions of God amid the hills, of his environments. Poets always speak from their surroundings. Longfellow was cited as speaking from the woods and hills by which he was surrounded. Thus we need to lift our eyes to the hills whence cometh our help. How narrow we make our lives, when God would lift us up and broaden us out. The more we have wrought out unto our nature the sinfulness of sin, and in contrast the beauty of holiness, we are not prepared for work. If we would allow the light of this holy mountain to illuminate our souls, if we could see ourselves as God sees us, we would crowd to the altar and cry out for mercy. On the mountain of beatitudes God showed the concrete light as it comes from the throne. But it is not possible to report the sermon. It was logical, eloquent and full of holy ghost religion. Mrs. Fred Frazier sang a solo before the sermon. At the close an altar service was held.

Camp Meeting Notes.

Mrs. C. A. Weaver, of Moundsville, spent the day yesterday at the Gaines cottage.

Miss Sarah McCann, of the South Side, Wheeling, is at the Thompson cottage.

Rev. Bente and Rev. Maloney attended the funeral of Miss Alice Fox, at Benwood, yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. Deda McConnell, of Wheeling, in the guest of her sister-in-law, Mrs. W. W. McConnell, in South Park.

Miss Ethel Glass, of the South Side, Wheeling; Mr. Harry Gorber and Miss Ida Sanford, are visiting the Misses Shafer, at the Cassell cottage.

Miss McFriedes, of Pittsburgh, who, when at home, is engaged in rescue mission work, is visiting her friend, Mrs. Wilson Allen, at her cottage.

Mrs. A. J. Hendley and daughter, Maude, and Misses Minnie Suttie McCracken are occupying the Wright cottage and will remain during the meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Allen and two children, Miss Hulda and Master Finn; Mrs. William Kemple and Mrs. George Miller are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Finn.

Mrs. Otto Barth and son Henry; Mrs. Henry Beulske; Mrs. Edward Higgins and Miss R. Andrews, with John and Thomas Hughes, sons of J. E. Hughes, all of Wheeling, were picnicing on the grounds.

In yesterday's report, Rev. D. S. Hammond was quoted as being the presiding elder of Huntington. It should have been Charleston district, but it is the same genial elder intended. The mistake was in the district, not in the man.

Misses Blanche and Nellie Shafer, Little Marsteller, of the South Side, Wheeling; and Ella Thels, of Marietta, Ohio, are a merry quartette occupying Mrs. Cassell's cottage in the North Park, for a few days only. They are enjoying themselves.

On Wednesday evening, Dr. Yocum preached his greatest sermon and a large congregation heard it. It had a good effect, and the fruits of it will doubtless be gathered after many days. The doctor is growing into the hearts of the people. He wears well.

Rev. Ruble and wife were called to Parkersburg yesterday to attend the funeral of Miss Emma Anderson, cousin of Mr. Ruble, which takes place this morning at 10 o'clock. He will return in the afternoon. In his absence Rev. C. H. Maloney will have charge of the music.

Let it be known to all that there will be services every day on the camp ground. At 6 a. m., prayer meeting; at 9 a. m., experience meeting; at 10:30 a. m., preaching; at 1:30 p. m., children's meeting; at 3 p. m., preaching; at 7:45 p. m., preaching. This afternoon, Rev. C. E. Clarke, of Thompson M. E. church, Wheeling, will preach.

Rev. W. B. King was called to the parsonage at Moundsville yesterday before noon, to marry Mr. George A. Coulter and Miss Alta Acker, of Brooke county. Brother King made no objections. Strange that ministers of the gospel are so ready to assist in getting people into trouble, but so it is and has been from time immemorial.

The ladies of the camp ground association held their annual meeting yesterday afternoon, and elected the following officers: Miss Rida Dean, president; Mrs. F. N. Flood, vice president; Mrs. William Brooks, corresponding secretary; Mrs. T. A. Rodefer, recording secretary; Mrs. Harry Travis, treasurer. They had at the beginning of the year a note of $250 to pay. They have raised so far $132 and not all in. This is surely a splendid report. The ladies are surely doing a great work in paying off the debt.
